Teaching is a hard task. There are only few gifted teachers who can make any course interesting. You could be one of them. Your students could inspire others to learn the teaching profession and perform better. We have identified several challenges in teaching Data Structures, Algorithms, Databases, and Operating Systems courses. We want to keep your creative edge of addressing these challenges!

Who can participate?

Any faculty member who teaches or has taught computing courses or holds a higher education position (e.g., a Ph.D. or M.Tech.) in computer science programs.

How can you participate?

You need to create a 10-15 minute video that explains how you address a specific teaching challenge. Submission link:

What are the benefits?

Travel to support from ACM India will be provided to announce a prize worth INR 20000. Participants will also receive a certificate. Submission will also be offered for registration to attend COMPUTE'21 virtually to share their work with the wider community of teaching faculty in India.

The selected videos shall be featured at ISIGSE/ACM seminars. They would give you more visibility and give other teachers an opportunity to learn from you.

Important Dates:

Submission deadline:
September 30, 2021 (No further extensions)
Announcement of winners:
October 25, 2021
COMPUTE'21 conference presentations: November 18-20, 2021
